Prague Castle and Hradčany Quarter

Prague Castle

Located in the so-called Hradčany (Castle Quarter), overlooking the Lesser Town, this sprawling series of connected palaces, courtyards and gardens cover almost 70,000 square meters and make it therefore the largest castle complex in the world enrolled in the Guinness Book of World Records. Originally dating back to the 9th century, but rebuilt many times, the Castle reflects each architectural and historical era that it has lived through. Until today it serves as the seat of the Czech president. Visitors shouldn't miss the changing of the guard at the Castle's main entrance on Hradčanské náměstí, or the daily ceremony in the First Courtyard at noon, which includes a fanfare and flag ceremony.

St. Vitus, St. Wenceslas and St. Adalbert Cathedral

The most stunning site within the Castle is the Gothic St. Vitus, St. Wenceslas and St. Adalbert Cathedral visible from most of the historical center of Prague. It is decorated with innumerable amount of jewels and gold and is preserving the provincial patrons, saints, kings and archbishops remains. Even though the cathedral started to be built under the reign of king Charles IV. In 1344, the construction was finished in the second half of the 19th century. Anyhow it is the landmark of the country and the sight every tourist has to visit once he arrives in Prague.

The Golden Lane

One of the other top spots hidden at the Prague Castle is the preserved Golden Lane. It consists of medieval humble dwelling, where the castle servants, the castle marksmen and goldsmiths used to live. The houses were occupied until World War II, but since the beginning of the 20th century it was made sure not to change any piece of the houses to keep the picturesque character of the lane.

St. George's Basilica

The St. George's Basilica was the second church at the Prague Castle founded around 920 by Prince Vratislaus I. In 973 the church was enlarged and rebuilt by the main Czech patron St. Wenceslas. The present Romanesque style of the basilica with an apse and two main towers comes from rebuilding after a devastating fire in 1142. During the first half of the 13th century the Chapel of St. Ludmila, the grandmother of St. Wenceslas, was added, in the early 18th century the baroque John of Nepomuk's chapel finished the enlarging of the Basilica. After a few other less significant changes it was finally reconstructed in 1969 and adapted for exposure of the Czech National Art Gallery.

Old Royal Palace

The Royal Palace at the Prague Castle went through many architectural periods. Founded in the late 9th century as a wooden building with a stone foundation wall it was rebuilt into a stone Romanesque palace in the 12th century and connected with the All Saints' Chapel in 1182. By the end of the 15th century the magnificent Vladislav Hall, combining the Late Gothic style with elements of the newly arriving Renaissance architecture, was added to the Royal Palace. In the 15th century the Place was destroyed by a big fire and had to be rebuilt new. Nowadays the interiors of the Royal Palace serve as ceremonial conference rooms and for an exhibition of creative art.

The Vladislav Hall

From the 16th century the Vladislav Hall served particularly for royal state purposes. It was the scene of coronation ceremonies, banquets, knights' tournaments and markets with artistic and luxurious goods. Even nowadays the Vladislav Hall partly fulfills the state function - the inauguration of the president of the Czech Republic and ceremonial gatherings connected with significant occasions and days of the country's life take place there. The observation gallery at the southern wall of the Vladislav Hall offers a beautiful view of one of the Royal Gardens. Adjoining the Vladislav Hall is the Diet, the All Saints' Church and the Ludwig Wing with the offices of the Czech Chancellery.

Hradčany & Petřín & Lesser Town

The Prague Loreto

Loreto Prague is a remarkable Baroque historical complex of buildings at the edge of the Prague Castle complex that became by the years a pilgrimage site. The decorative front façade and the clock tower from the 17th century are the most impressive spots of the Loreto. Every hour between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. the 27 Loreto bells play the song "We Greet You 1,000 Times," composed by Antonín Leopold Dvořák. Many touching legends about the bells contribute to the astonishment when listening to the carillon. When walking through the frontal building there is the so-called Santa Casa – a copy of the "Holy house" in Nazaret and the Church of the Nativity of Our Lord. The most valuable item of the liturgical treasury is the Loreto Treasure - a collection of sacred object from the 16th to 18th centuries. The most famous of these is a monstrance, also known as the Prague Sun, decorated with unbelievable 6,500 diamonds.

Petřín – Observation Tower

Rising up from the top of the Petřín Hill, the hill-park connecting the Prague Castle with the Lesser Town, the Petřín Lookout Tower was inspired by the Eiffel Tower in Paris. Built in 1891 by the Czech Tourist Club for the occasion of the Jubilee Exhibition, the 60-meter-high tower has 299 steps leading up to the top observation deck. The Tower is accessible either by walking the path uphill, or by taking the cable car. In case you are not a big fan of observation towers, the visit uphill in the park is anyway for sure worth it, as it offers one of the most beautiful views of Prague and the Prague Castle especially.

Lesser Town – St. Nicholas Church

The visit of the romantic Lesser Town with its small bakery, fruit and vegetable and other local shops shifts you back to history. However, the highlight of the Lesser Town is for sure the St. Nicholas Church with its copper dome and belfry, making it one of the most stylistically pure examples of High Baroque architecture in Europe. Partly serving for religious purpose but partly for governmental purpose, the belfry became a strategic Prague watchtower through 1891 and a secret police watch tower under the communist regime.

Lesser Town – Infant Jesus of Prague

The Church of Our Lady of Victory is world-wide famous for preserving since 1628 the sacred 47 cm tall wax-coated wooden figure of Infant Jesus. It was a gift to Prague from Spain. It is said it once belonged to St. Teresa of Avila and that it has the ability of making miracles. Roman Catholic pilgrims from all over the world come to Prague just to see this figure. The Church of Our Lady of Victory itself is an early baroque building constructed by German Lutherans in 1611 – 1612 and consecrated to the Holy Trinity. The early baroque main altar from 1716 is unique for its alternating black-and-gold finish. Many other altarpieces are valuable works of art as well.

The Bridge Towers

The Charles Bridge, connecting the Lesser Town and the Old Town, is from both sides bordered by the Bridge Towers. Even though they look almost same, they are built about 200 years apart and they served quite different purposes. The smaller Romanesque Lesser Town Bridge Tower is called Judith Tower after the former Judith Bridge that was destroyed by floods in 1342. It was used as a jail for over two centuries and the customs authority was based in the tower from 1591 to 1784. The taller High Gothic Old Town Bridge Tower was constructed together with the Charles Bridge in 1357. It took over one century to finish it and even though it was originally built as a bastion for defense, it served as a storehouse in the end but was also used as a watchtower by the authorities.

Today, both are accessible to the public, and their upper levels offer good views of the Charles Bridge and the Lesser Town.

Charles Bridge / Old Town

The Charles Bridge, named after its founder Charles IV, is one of the most iconic structures and one of the most popular and recognizable sights in Prague. It was built in 1357 at the place of the former Judith Bridge that was destroyed during the flood in 1342 and it served as an important connection for trade between the east and west. It is said, that builders put raw eggs between the bricks to make the bridge survive every natural disaster. The Charles Bridge is 515 meters long, adorned with 30 stone statues of saints added between 1683 and 1928, however, all of them are replicas today. The originals are housed in the Lapidarium museum in Holešovice. The most famous statue on the bridge is that of St. John of Nepomuk - rubbing his foot is rumored to bring fortune.

The Old Town Hall

When the Old Town won the right to establish its own administrative centre in 1338, a gothic house of the wealthy merchant was chosen for this authority. This was the actual foundation part of the Old Town Hall. Many significant events in the country's history are connected with the Old Town Hall – the King of Bohemia (George of Podebrady) was selected there, it became the seat of the city's unified official administration, important wedding had been held there. At the end of World War II in 1945 the Town Hall was bombarded by tank and the eastern and northern wings of the building were completely destroyed. The tower with the Astronomical Clock and a chapel were also heavily damaged.

The Astronomical Clock was first installed in 1410, which is making it the third-oldest astronomical clock in the world and the oldest one still working. The clock mechanism itself is composed of three main components: the astronomical dial, representing the position of the Sun and Moon in the sky and displaying various astronomical details. "The Walk of the Apostles", a clockwork hourly show of figures of the Apostles and other moving sculptures and a calendar dial with medallions representing the months.

Old Town

Josefov – the Jewish Quarter

The Jewish Quarter in Prague represents only a small part of what it was before, but anyway it is the best current complex of Jewish historical monuments in Europe. It started as a small walled ghetto in 1096, for centuries had to face a pogrom against its inhabitants, who were mainly Jewish immigrants. Between 1893 and 1913, however, the district was razed to the ground as a part of expansive redevelopment plans, leaving only a few significant buildings as the living testimony of many centuries of Prague Jewish life.

Six synagogues remain from this old settlement – one of them, The Old-New Synagogue, is the oldest preserved synagogue in Central Europe. Another significant part is the Jewish Town Hall and the Old Jewish Cemetery, one of the oldest in Europe, dating to the mid-15th century, where more than 100,000 people were laid to rest among just 12,000 graves.

Old Town – Powder Tower

The Powder Tower is a one of the original medieval gates to the Old Town built by Matej Rejsek in the Gothic style in 1475. In the 18th century, it served as a gunpowder depository, giving it its current name. In the late 19th century it was rebuilt and remains one of Prague's most important medieval monuments. Royal coronation processions used to start at the Powder Tower going all the way to the Prague Castle and it was also the starting point of an important route to and from Kutná Hora – the medieval city of silver.

After King Charles IV established the Lesser Town as the main part of Prague, the Old Town including the Powder Tower was no longer of main importance, but won its former fame back in the 16th century.

Old Town – Týn Church

Apart from the Astronomical Clock the most recognizable sight of Old Town Square is the Týn Church. Founded in the 14th century, the church has an extensive gallery of Gothic, Renaissance and early Baroque works of art. The church is a three-aisle basilica with two 80 meter high towers on the western facade and three choirs on the eastern side. The interior shows unique wood carvings and altars, the oldest organ in Prague and preserves also a large number of tombs. One of the most famous is the tomb of Tycho Brahe, a Danish astronomer and alchemist who served at the court of Emperor Rudolph II.

THEATRES

National Theatre

The National Theatre was built in the years 1868-1881 by voluntary contributions of the whole nation. The original Neo-Renaissance design was by the Czech architect Zítek, but short after the opening a big fire destroyed a big part of the theatre. Due to a new fund-raising and the solidarity of Czechs, reconstructions could be started very soon and the National Theatre was opened new in 1883. Today the theatre is among others one of the best Czech theaters. It plays, operas, ballets and dramas.

Estate Theatre

Built in the years 1781-1783 in Neo-Classical architecture style makes the Estate Theatre the oldest one in Prague. The capacity of the theatre is 659 places. Mozart's opera Don Giovanni had its debut here in the year 1787 as well as a musical comedy called Fidlovačka. This was the first time when the song "Kde domov můj?" (Where is my home?) was performed, which later became the Czech national anthem. Today, drama, ballet and operas (especially those from Mozart) are being played.

The State Opera

The State Opera, originally known as the New German Theatre, was built in the years 1886-1888 on behalf of the German Theatre Association. Prague Germans performed at time at the Estate Theatre together with the Czechs, but they wished to have their own scene. The theatre building has a spacious auditorium and decorations in Neo-Rococo style, which are among the most beautiful in Europe. The repertoire nowadays contains mainly international opera and ballet performances.

Black Theatres

Black Theatre is something very typical for Prague. Whenever it comes to Prague theatres, people will think of the black theatre. It is a combination of pantomime, light and music that leads the audience into a magic world of fantasy.

The most popular are:

Black Theatre Metro

Poetry, humor any irony without words – only pantomime, music, sounds and light effects. The Black Theatre Metro is the only one among the black theatres, that reveals his secret of the light effects at the end of the show and each performance is followed by a short interactive workshop.

Black Light Theatre IMAGE

If you think each black theatre is the same, you are wrong. Black is different, light is different - the darkness of the scene is full of fantasy. From a mysterious, endless depth of the black cabinet poetic images show up and disappear back in darkness.

Laterna Magika

This day we will take you by our bus to the marvellous historical towns in southern Bohemia, that we would like to present to you.

Jindřichův Hradec - The most significant sight of the town is the third largest chateau complex in the Czech Republic. The tower of the Church of Our Lady dominates the town. Through its corner leads the 15th meridian. The building of the former Jesuit cemetery (today a museum) houses the so-called Krýza's crèche, the largest mechanical nativity scene in the world. Among the major sights there is also the Church of St. John the Baptist with valuable frescoes and a former monitory monastery.

Slavonice - The town was founded in the 13th century and the area is sometimes called Czech Canada due to its rough climate. Slavonice is known for its burghers' houses with rich Renaissance gables, often decorated with figurative sgraffito and featuring special vaulted entrance halls (the so-called mázhaus). The Gothic Church of the Assumption of Our Lady and two gates create the silhouette of the town.

Telč - Originally a royal water keep founded in the 13th century on the crossroads of several busy trade routes. Beside the chateau and its park, among the most important monuments there is the square – a unique complex of Renaissance and Baroque houses.

On the route there will be enough opportunities for refreshment, the dinner will be served in the hotel in České Budějovice.

3rd DAY – ČESKÝ KRUMLOV & VYŠÍ BROD & ROŽMBERK

After the breakfast you will continue to Český Krumlov. This picturesque town is located in a deep, meandering valley of the Vltava river.

Its golden age was during the rule of the Lords of Rožemberk (Rosenberg), in 1302-1602, who made their residence there. The Italian Renaissance greatly influenced the appearance of the town and its castle. At the end of the 17th century, during the rule of the Eggenberg dynasty, a Baroque theatre was built and the chateau garden remodelled. You for sure cannot miss the visit of the chateau and after that lunch will be served in a local restaurant. Next stop on your journey will be closter Vyšší Brod.

In the 13th century Czech magnate Peter Vok I of Rosenberg originated the Cistercian monastery. According to the legend this act was the expression of thanks to God, after Vok survived in heavy waters of Vltava River. The monastery Church of the Assumption of Our Lady from the 13th century is its most valuable part and it's dominant. The oldest part is the square capitulary hall, than there is the church, the capitulary hall, and the third biggest library in Bohemia with its 70,000 books.

You will be offered a visit of this unique place. Then you will continue on your journey to the castle Rožemberk.

It is the complex of two Rožemberk castles, the so-called Upper castle is from the 13th century, and the Lower castle from the 14th century. From the Upper castle only the tower Jakobínska has preserved, which is not accessible. In the Lower castle historical interiors (a knight's hall, a picture gallery, an armoury etc.) with historical furnishings and collections are presented to the visitors. Newly accessible is the hangman's house, the White Lady Perchta of Pernštejn and a gallery (contemporary art).

The village is a living monument with rustic traditions, such as those we know from the Bartered Bride, perhaps the most famous Czech opera.

The second stop on your journey will be the old historical city Tábor.

In the late 14th century, there was a castle founded above the river Lužnice. The Hussites conquered it in 1420 and built a fortified town there. The abbot of the Žďár monastery has built this pilgrimage church to celebrate the memory of the Czech martyr and saint, John of Nepomuk. It is a unique testament to the genius of the Prague architect Giovanni Blasius Santini, who decided to use the five-pointed star as the principal symbol in his remarkable structure. The main altar depicts the martyr being carried by angels to heaven. The apex of the cupola contains a giant tongue, the symbol of St. John of Nepomuk. This church shows the splendid Bohemian Gothic Baroque architecture.

The next stop on your journey there will be town Třebíč with its Basilica Of St. Procopius and the Jewish Town. Třebíč is the town of uncommon religious sights, the most famous of which is the Romanesque-Gothic Basilica of St. Procopius. Třebíč used to belong to the important centres of Jewish culture in Moravia. of the former Jewish institutions – e.g. the Town Hall, the school, the rabbinate and the poorhouse have been preserved. The Back Synagogue was completely reconstructed. Its interior, decorated with unique wall paintings from the early 18th century, houses the exposition of the history of the former ghetto. Around 3,000 tombstones, the eldest of which dates back to 1625, are situated in a beautiful park with tall trees and mysterious atmosphere. The cemetery includes the Ceremonial Hall from 1903 with uniquely preserved interiors. Funeral ceremonies have been taking place here according to the old Jewish tradition. Wenceslas III., was murdered here. Other important structures are the Přemyslid Palace, Hradisko – the largest Premonstratensian monastery in all of Europe, and the fortified Church of St. Maurice with its renowned organ; the church dates back to the 15th-16th century. A small chapel in the St. Wenceslas' Square houses a Madonna from 1483, one of the most valuable Gothic sculptures in the Czech Republic. The Baroque column came into existence between 1716 and 1754.

The core of the Old Town is the Český Krumlov Castle, which is quite large for a town of Krumlov's size - within the Czech Republic it is second in extent, right after the Prague Castle. Inside its grounds there is a large Rococo garden, an extensive bridge over a deep gap in the rock upon which the castle is built, and the castle itself, which in turn consists of many defined parts dating from different periods of time.

Chateau Hluboká is situated in the same named city and is considered to be one of the most beautiful chateaus of the Czech Republic. In the second half of the 13th century a gothic castle was built at the site. During its history it was rebuilt several times, first in the Renaissance period, then in the Baroque period. It reached its current appearance during the 19th century when Johann Adolf II von Schwarzenberg ordered the reconstruction of the castle in the romantic style of the Windsor Castle.

Believe us, that you will be delighted in guided sightseeing tour of the chateau with its gardens and in having refreshment in adjacent hotel restaurant, that was built as the replica to the chateau Hluboká.

The first written mention about the town is in 1220. At the end of the 12th century more people arrived to the former Slavic settlement. At the beginning of the 13th century a Gothic castle was built, gradually rebuilt into a Renaissance chateau in the 16th century. In the times of the Thirty Years' War (1618–1648), Jindřichův Hradec was the second largest city in the Kingdom of Bohemia. The city Castle and Palace is the third largest in the country after those in Prague and Český Krumlov. It covers 30,000 m<sup>2</sup> and contains 320 rooms. More than 10,000 works of art and a similar number of books may be found there. Dinner and overnight in Jindřichův Hradec.

7th DAY – TELČ & LEDNICE CHATEAU

Besides the monumental 17th century Renaissance chateau with an English-style park (rebuilding of original Gothic castle), the most significant sight is the main town square - a unique complex of long urban plaza with well-conserved Renaissance and Baroque houses with high gables and arcades. The column of a Virgin and the fountain in the centre of the square date back to the 18th century. The Gothic castle was built in the second half of the 14th century. In the middle of the 16th century the medieval castle was rebuilt into a Renaissance style castle. The ground floor was vaulted anew, the facade decorated, the interior received stucco ornamentation. Since 1992 all of this has been a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Continuing your journey your experience will be upgraded visiting the small town and chateau Lednice. Chateau Lednice is located in South Moravia in the Czech Republic. In 1996 it was inscribed on the UNESCO World Heritage List. It contains a palace and the largest park in the country, which covers 200 km<sup>2</sup>. In the mid-13th century the Palace of Lednice was built in a style of a Renaissance villa; in the 17th century it became a summer residence of the ruling Princes of Liechtenstein. The estate house proclaimed rural luxury on the grandest scale. In 1846-58 it was extensively rebuilt in a Neo-Gothic style palace. The surrounding park is laid out in English garden style and contains artificial ruins of a medieval castle and a solitary sixty-meter minaret, reputedly the tallest outside the Muslim world at the time of its construction (1797–1804). The tradition of the Czech spas is an inseparable part of the European cultural heritage. Thanks to the high quality of the natural therapeutic springs it has earned an exceptional reputation and respect in European people's mind. The use of the most advanced therapeutic and rehabilitating methods combined with a traditional use of natural thermal and mineral water, peloids (therapeutic mud or clay), natural gas and the climate makes the Czech Republic among European countries a superpower in the field of spa treatment and wellness.

Healing procedures

Balneotherapy offers a wide range of procedures, which are always recommended by doctors depending on the current health of the client.

Healing sources in balneotherapy

Mineral water is used in spa or balneotherapy for many purpose, depending on its composition - for drinking cures, inhalations, irrigations, bathing or underwater massages.

Peloids are used for wraps, compresses and baths and have a beneficial effect on the musculoskeletal system and skin.

Gases are used for subcutaneous application for pain relief and the treatment of functional disorders.

An essential part of spa treatment is also the climate - beautiful nature, clean air and altitude may have an additional healing effect.

Typical procedures in Czech spas:

Drinking medicinal mineral water

The rich mineral water gently regulate the functioning of the stomach, bowels, kidneys and liver. A drinking treatment normally consists of drinking a prescribed amount of mineral water from the springs before meals, as drinking on an empty stomach increases the efficiency and effect of the mineral substances and their absorption into the body. Each particular fountain in our different spa resorts has its own unique benefits and advantages.

Mineral bath with natural CO<sub>2</sub>

This is a signature treatment, exclusively provided in the spa resorts using the natural local mineral waters with natural CO<sub>2</sub> gas that seeps out from the ground. The water is heated to a temperature of between 32-34°C and the carbon dioxide is absorbed through the skin into the body, where it slows down the heart activity and reduces the blood pressure. Several treatments will result in improved blood circulation, heart and kidney activity as well as reduced stress and anxiety.

Natural dry carbon gas bath

This gas is of volcanic origin and contains 99.7% CO<sub>2</sub>. It inflates slowly and is absorbed through the clothes and skin into the body, where it slows down heart activity and reduces blood pressure. The gas also improves blood circulation and kidney activity and has an anti-inflammatory effect. The gas is also well known for stimulating the production of sexual hormones, testosterone and estradiol, which is why its use is successful for improving sexual functions and relieving menopausal symptoms for women.

Natural CO<sub>2</sub> gas injection

These injections are used for application of the CO<sub>2</sub> gas that bubbles naturally out from the ground. The application of this gas is subcutaneous in the area of large joints and spine, produces many remarkable effects including pain relief, improvement of blood circulation to the treated area and acceleration of healing.

Individual bubble bath

The individual bubble bath is in normal water, heated to a temperature of between 32-34°C. Small bubbles of air are then pumped into the bathtub. The treatment is ideal for general relaxation, as there is a pleasant soothing feeling of tickling caused by the bubbles. The treatment is followed by a full body 15-minute dry wrap.

Manual lymph drainage

This is a specialized massage conducted by a physiotherapist which is intended to assist the lymphatic system, particularly in cases where there is or has been an irregularity. This action stimulates lymph node activity to cleanse the body and assist the flow of lymphatic fluid to remove toxins, debris, cell waste and dead particles.

Water rehabilitation

Water rehabilitation is conducted in water at a temperature of approximately 33°C. In most of our spas the used water is natural thermal water and the exercises are led by a qualified physiotherapists. Water rehabilitation is either conducted in groups with other clients of a similar diagnostic profile or individually.

Lavatherm - Duotherm

Lavatherm is a heat treatment where a local warm appliance is applied to a section of the body. The pack is placed onto the indicated section of the body, helping to relieve the pain and stimulate the healing.

Inhalation

Inhalation with medicine has the same effect and uses the same principles as salt inhalation or thermal water inhalation, but it has a stronger effect. It is effective in the treatment of chronic respiratory conditions, allergies or the after-effects of a cold or respiratory infection.

Oxygen therapy - Oxygen inhalation

Oxygen is inhaled through an intranasal tube into the nose while you lie comfortably in a reclining chair. An increased supply of oxygen into the body enhances the immune system, improves heart activity and the elasticity of the lungs, helps the condition and efficiency of the mind and is excellent for overall health.

Laser therapy - Gerovital

Gerovital is a regenerative treatment administered by a series of injections. The treatment claims to slow down the ageing processes, boost revitalization and improve concentration and memory.

Counterindication: over sensitivity to procaine.

Laser therapy

Laser therapy is a therapy that uses coherent, monochromatic light that is part of the segment of visible light. It has a special bio-stimulating effect, mainly due to the fact that it stimulates collagen, speeds up the regeneration of blood vessels and lymphatic routes and improves the utilization of oxygen resulting in a positive effect on the healing process.

Classical massage

A manual massage with oil or emulsion. It can be offered as a part massage (neck + back) or an overall body massage (including arms and legs). It stimulates the metabolism and blood circulation. The massage gradually alleviates or eliminates pains in the locomotor apparatus.

Health care

Historical landmarks such as the Golden Roof, the Court Church with its stunning bronze statues, the Imperial Palace and Ambras Castle evoke the grandeur of the Habsburg empire's bygone greatness. With no doubt Innsbruck also belongs to one of the most famous European winter-sports centers and is therefore in its high season a lively young atmospheric city.

Salzburg

Salzburg is the fourth-largest city in Austria and the capital of the federal state of Salzburg. Its literal translation means "Salt Castle", referring to its massive fortress rising above the city's valley and the "white gold" from the mountains in the South. ## Vienna

Vienna is the capital and largest city of Austria, until the beginning of the 20th century (before the splitting of the Austro-Hungarian Empire in World War I) it was also the largest German-speaking city in the world. Vienna is said to be "The City of Music" – it played an essential role as a leading European music centre from the great age of Viennese Classicism through the early part of the 20th century. The city's roots lie in early Celtic and Roman settlements that transformed into a Baroque city, the capital of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. St. Stephen's Cathedral is the mother church of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Vienna and the seat of the Archbishop of Vienna. The current Romanesque and Gothic form of the cathedral, seen today at the Stephans-square was initiated by Duke Rudolf IV (1339–1365) and it has, with its multi-colored tile roof, become one of the city's most recognizable symbols. Built of limestone, the cathedral is 107 m long, 40 m wide and 136 m tall at its highest point. Over the centuries, soot and other forms of air pollution accumulating on the church have given it the black color, but the building was originally white.

The Vienna State Opera is an opera house with a history dating back to the mid-19th century. It is located in the centre of Vienna. The opening premiere was Don Giovanni, by Mozart, on 25th May 1869. For many decades, the opera house has been the venue of the Vienna Opera Ball. The Spanish Riding School in Vienna is a traditional riding school for Lipizzaner horses that use a unique technic of training the horses – they study and cultivate one by one the horse's naturally movements. The result is an indescribable harmony between rider and horse. The riding school was established 1572 in a wooden arena at the square Josefsplatz, in 1729 the Emperor Charles VI replaced it straight to the Court Castle (Hofburg), where he let build the famous white riding hall, that is used for this purpose until today. Nowadays the public performances as well as permitting public viewing of some training sessions is one of Vienna's leading attractions.

The Prater is a large public park in Vienna full of bicycle pathways, picnic meadows and fountains. Budapest, the capital of Hungary, became a single city occupying both sides of the river Danube with an unification of the west riverside Buda and east riverside Pest on the 17th November 1873. Budapest has the world's largest thermal water cave system leading to in total 80 geothermal springs. That is why the city is called the "City of Spas". Regarded as one of the most beautiful cities in Europe, its extensive World Heritage Site includes the banks of the Danube, the Buda Castle Quarter, the Parliament building, but also the Millennium Underground Railway - the second oldest in the world.

The Chain Bridge is a suspension bridge that spans the River Danube between Buda and Pest, the western and eastern sides of Budapest. Designed by the English engineer William Tierney Clark, it was the first permanent bridge across the Danube in Budapest, and was opened in 1849. At the time of its construction, it was regarded as one of the modern world's engineering wonders. It became a symbol of advancement and national awakening and has asserted an enormous significance in the country's economic, social and cultural life, much as the Brooklyn Bridge has in New York in USA.

Thermal baths is an inseparable part of Budapest. One of the reasons the Romans first colonized the area of today's Budapest and established their regional capital is that they could utilize and enjoy the thermal springs. There are still ruins visible today of the enormous baths that were built during that period. The new baths that were constructed during the Turkish period (1541–1686) served both bathing and medicinal purposes, and some of these are still in use to this day. Budapest gained its reputation as a city of spas in the 1920s, after the economic potential of the thermal waters as a visitor spot was realized.

The Buda Castle was built on the southern tip of Castle Hill, bounded on the north by what is known as the Castle District, famous for its Medieval, Baroque, and 19th century houses, churches, and public buildings. This historical castle and palace complex of the Hungarian kings in Budapest was first completed in 1265. In the past it went through several reconstructions and modernizations due to Hungary's long and manifold history and reflects various architecture styles, from the Turkish period to the Austro-Hungarian Empire times.

The Hungarian Parliament Building - one of Europe's oldest legislative buildings, a notable landmark of Hungary and a popular tourist destination of Budapest serves also as the seat of the National Assembly of Hungary. It is currently the largest building in Hungary and the tallest building in Budapest. In 1880, after the unification of Budapest from three separate cities the decision to establish a new, representative Parliament Building was made. The construction started in 1885 and the building was inaugurated on the 1000th anniversary of the country in 1896, further completed in 1904. About one thousand people were involved in constructions, during which 40 million bricks, half a million precious stones and 40 kilograms of gold were used.
